Subject: Suggestion Box Response

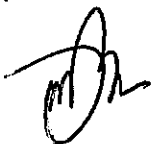

The Police Department's Suggestion Box received the following anonymous suggestion:

"In a time of alleged fiscal responsibility or irresponsibility in this case, I find it appalling that in a Department with over 1000 sworn and civilian members that the police department cannot find someone to teach RMS training. So that Lieutenants aren't paid Double Time for ten hour blocks on their second off-day after making Time and a half for ten hours the previous day! We are paying these lieutenants over $81.00 an hour. How come they can't switch their off days like the rest of us are forced to do?"

Based on a change in State law, the Department was required to provide training to all sworn members by the end of 2012 on the revised OH-1 Crash Report. In light of our plan to launch direct offense reporting in March of 2013, the decision was made to conduct a full day training block, including training on the new OH-1 as well as the proper way to enter reports electronically from the field. Trainers must be highly skilled as the material being taught is technical and sophisticated. A Training Schedule was developed that required the use of overtime to complete the training by the end of 2012 (as required by law) and complied with current contracts of the employees serving as trainers. Field personnel were included as trainers, which required balancing the needs of their respective units with the training needs. This plan was pre-approved by Chief Craig.

In fact, the trainers did change off days and schedules to cover the training and minimize costs. On one occasion, Lieutenant Daniel Ogilvie worked both his off days, thus entitling him to overtime the first off day and double time the second off day. This was necessary as no other trainer was available for these sessions. Other employees received various amounts of overtime as well, to accommodate the aggressive schedule. The total overtime allotted and spent on this training was approximately $4,200.00. This expenditure of available overtime funds in 2012 will save the Department substantial funds in 2013 when direct offense reporting is launched, as the training blocks required will only be 3 hours, because of the foundation training already provided via the OH-1 training.

Dear Chief Craig;

It is with great appreciation that I send you this letter. Recently members of the Louisville Metro Police Department's Crime Information Center visited the Cincinnati Police Department's Crime Analysis and Problem-Solving Unit, Real-Time Crime Center and attended a STARS meeting. I am truly thankful for the manner in which you and your staff devoted their time and attention to our members.

The LMPD staff was humbled by the cooperation and friendship extended in the STARS meeting by you, Assistant Chief Paul Humphries, Lieutenant Colonel James Whalen, Lieutenant Maris Herold, Lieutenant Lisa Thomas, Sergeant Matt Hammer, Officer Katie Werner, Officer Tony Peters, Analyst Sally Tarabah and the rest of your staff. Your staff was kind enough to schedule visits to multiple departments and locations. Your staff was kind enough to answer our many questions and give us your thoughts and experiences into these aspects of policing.

I cannot overstate the positive impact this type of collaboration has on our police department. Due to the generosity and cooperation of the Cincinnati Police Department, LMPD was able to gain valuable information and insights that will help us improve our operations. We look forward to further collaborations with the Cincinnati Police Department.
